I have the honour to transmit herewith a copy of a letter addressed to you by Mr. Abdellatif Filali, Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs and Cooperation, concerning the decision of the other party to suspend its participation in the identification operation (see annex). Annex

Letter dated 26 June 1995 from the Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs and Cooperation of Morocco addressed to the President of the Security Council

The Kingdom of Morocco sincerely believed that the conclusions and recommendations of the Security Council mission, together with the various measures taken by the Council, would give new impetus to the implementation of the settlement plan.

Unfortunately, the decision by the other party to suspend its participation in the identification operation and the threats of resumed hostilities have dashed all the hopes raised by the mission and the efforts of the Security Council.

This unilateral decision only confirms the statement made to the members of the Security Council mission and reflected in the oral report presented to the Council in informal consultations that the other party was planning to withdraw from the process for settling the Saharan question.

On this occasion, the Kingdom of Morocco would like to recall that it has agreed to considerable sacrifices and made numerous concessions to facilitate the work of the Secretary-General, who had been induced to take the other party's demands and whims into consideration in order to move the process forward.

Accordingly, the Kingdom of Morocco had accepted the criteria proposed by the Secretary-General after their adoption by the Security Council in its resolution 725 (1991) of 31 December 1991, notwithstanding the serious reservations it had expressed at the time, whereas the other party had rejected them outright, going so far as to accuse the Secretary-General and the United Nations of partiality and connivance.

Moreover, Morocco had subsequently accepted the compromise interpretation and application of the criteria proposed by the Secretary-General to accommodate the other party's position. The other party refused and only reluctantly agreed to do so after the Security Council had described them in its resolution 907 (1994) of 29 March 1994 as constituting a sound framework for determining eligibility for participation in the referendum.

Contrary to this agreement, the other party instructed its sheikhs to systematically oppose almost any request by persons applying for identification on the basis of criteria 4 and 5 at the very same time it agreed to apply those criteria to Bachir Sayed and even to the head of the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguia el-Hamra y de Río de Oro (POLISARIO), who signed the letter addressed to you.

The other party thus persists in falsifying an eternal truth, which holds that any person who submits an application is nothing more than an applicant until the Identification Commission reaches a decision (and this holds true for all applicants residing outside the Territory who have been registered but not identified).

Consequently, the other party cannot take the place of the Identification Commission by decreeing who is Saharan and who is not before the Commission has reached a decision on the basis of the established criteria.

The other party having concluded that the process would clearly show that it accounted for only a small minority of the Saharan population, it decided to take advantage of the ministerial meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) to cry injustice, claiming that the United Nations was incapable of ensuring the objectivity and neutrality of the operation.

This obstructionist attitude is diametrically opposed to the fundamental principle enunciated at the meeting of tribal chiefs in June 1990 at Geneva, which holds that no Saharan may be prevented from applying to the Identification Commission.

It is thus clearly established that the other party is displaying bad faith and is trying by any means to deprive the majority of Saharans, both those who are resident in the Territory and those who are not, of their legitimate right to participate in the referendum.

The Kingdom of Morocco has thus far reacted with calm and moderation to the other party's moods and procrastination, but today it can rightly say that the other party has tried from the very start to ascribe to itself the right to express the will of the Saharan people, imposing the minority view on the majority, by means we no longer consider appropriate.

Morocco, which has agreed to entrust the organization of the referendum to the United Nations, can no longer stand to see the other party claim for itself the right to veto this operation without any damage to its credibility or prestige.

In fact, Morocco can no longer agree to let a minority impose its dictates on a United Nations operation, to halt the process when it feels like it and to resume it when it suits it to do so.

Morocco has repeatedly told the Secretary-General and the Security Council that it could not accept an indefinite postponement of the referendum.

Morocco wishes to stress that the other party's decision will have grave consequences which may jeopardize the entire process and have the most serious repercussions, as the Secretary-General noted in his report of 19 May 1995 (S/1995/404, para. 36).

Accordingly, Morocco calls upon the Security Council to take all necessary steps to ensure the resumption of the process with a view to holding the referendum on schedule.

This being the case, and in accordance with the recommendation contained in paragraph 46 of the report of the Security Council mission (S/1995/498), Morocco has already transmitted to the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO) the diskette containing the names of applicants residing outside the Territory and is cooperating fully with MINURSO so that they can be identified as quickly as possible.

Morocco also expects that the United Nations will take all necessary steps to ensure that the Saharans residing or sequestered in Tindouf may freely express their will and enter the Territory to participate in the referendum.

The decision of the Frente POLISARIO is all the more serious in that it is likely to undermine the credibility of the Security Council at a time when the whole world is joyfully preparing to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the United Nations.
