ANNEX

Declaration adopted by the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the Organization of African Unity at New York on 29 September 1994

We, the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the States members of the Organization of African Unity, meeting in New York on 29 September 1994,

Having considered the changes and events which have occurred throughout the world and which have strong political, economic and social implications for countries in all categories; noting that a number of measures have been taken with a view to the reform and revitalization of the United Nations system, to enable it to respond more effectively to the aspirations of the Member States in the area of security and in the economic and social sectors; and emphasizing the need for continuous monitoring and evaluation of the United Nations reform process,

Declare solemnly that:

1. The reform measures adopted must be applied with flexibility in order to ensure that the United Nations gives increased attention to the socio-economic development questions which remain critical in Africa, the least developed region. Henceforward, all the decisions adopted should be implemented, so as to enable the United Nations to carry out effectively and efficiently its policies and programme of operational activities.
2. The United Nations, its subsidiary organs and the specialized agencies are the principal mechanisms for carrying out world policies designed to tackle the matters of common interest discussed and adopted by the United Nations. In this respect, we emphasize that the General Assembly has a cardinal role in the supervision of all United Nations organs and in the preparation of an international consensus with respect to economic, social, political and related matters. We state further that, although Africa undoubtedly supports the reorganization of the United Nations, including the reorganization of the agencies responsible for operational activities for development, those reforms should not hamper its effective and favourable participation in the work of those organs.
3. We reaffirm that the United Nations Secretariat has a major role to play in devising and carrying out world policies. In this respect, a more equitable representation in the higher-echelon posts and at the decision-making levels at Headquarters would facilitate the strengthened delivery of programmes of interest to Africa. As regards the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s, it is imperative to establish an appropriate high-level department, in addition to the current Africa coordination office, to monitor and implement the programmes designed to meet Africa's development concerns as reflected in the New Agenda.
4. We invite all the parties to the negotiation of the draft resolution establishing a diversification fund for Africa's commodities to demonstrate flexibility so that the resolution may be adopted in the course of this forty-ninth session of the General Assembly.

5. We welcome the conclusion, on 17 June 1994, at Paris, of the International Convention on the Control of Desertification in Countries Seriously Affected by Drought and/or Desertification, particularly in Africa. We welcome the opening of the Convention for signature at Paris on 14 and 15 October 1994, and we urge all Member States to sign and ratify it as soon as possible.

6. We reaffirm that the socio-economic situation of Africa remains very perturbing and warrants particular attention on the part of the United Nations system and the international community. At the same time, we recognize that other regions of the world also have pressing problems.

7. We appeal also to the international community, especially the developed countries, to assume commitments favourable to Africa in the framework of the World Summit for Social Development, to be held at Copenhagen in March 1995, the Fourth World Conference on Women, to be held at Beijing in September 1995, and United Nations Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II), to be held at Istanbul in June 1996.

8. We welcome the Fourth World Conference on Women, and we reaffirm our support for the convening at Dakar in November 1995 of the regional preparatory conference. We emphasize the necessity of a platform of action to deal with the critical social and economic situation of African women. In this respect, we appeal to the international community to ensure that the results of the Conference are carried out and monitored.

9. We reaffirm the important and constructive role which Africa should play in the formulation of world policies, and we therefore reject the marginalization of the African continent. While recognizing that other regions also are experiencing pressing problems, we maintain that the situation of Africa is particularly acute and warrants special attention.

10. We continue to regard the Bretton Woods institutions as important for the promotion of international economic development. At the same time, development aid to Africa would have a greater impact if it reflected policies and strategies as mapped out by the Africans themselves. In this respect, the improved coordination of the activities of the Bretton Woods institutions and the activities of the United Nations would be a step in the right direction. Such coordination, in Africa's view, would, if OAU was fully associated with it, be extremely conducive to the implementation of the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s. The Bretton Woods institutions should be accountable to the United Nations, in accordance with the provisions of Articles 57 and 63 of the Charter of the United Nations.

11. We hope that the agenda for development to be drawn up at the forty-ninth session of the General Assembly will make concrete and action-oriented recommendations and will define specific and practical ways of applying those recommendations.

12. We welcome the forthcoming entry into force on 16 November 1994 of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, and we appeal to States to sign and ratify the Agreement relating to Part XI adopted in July 1994.

13. We note with regret that the resources allocated to United Nations operational activities for development continue to decline, in spite of the commitment on the part of the developed countries to increase their share of assistance to 0.7 per cent of GNP. In this respect, we appeal to the developed countries to set up a more predictable and more reliable financing mechanism, in conjunction with the international cooperation commitments assumed in the context of the resolutions of the General Assembly. We are referring more especially to the Declaration on International Economic Cooperation, in particular the Revitalization of Economic Growth and Development of the Developing Countries, adopted at the eighteenth special session; the International Development Strategy for the Fourth United Nations Development Decade; the Declaration on the Right to Development; the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s; the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s; the Cartagena Commitment adopted by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development at its eighth session; the Rio Declaration on Environment and Development and Agenda 21, adopted by the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, together with other agreements and conventions adopted by the Conference; the Cairo Declaration on Population and Development; and the consensus on the eradication of poverty and social degradation and disintegration, which is scheduled for adoption at the conclusion of the World Summit for Social Development, to be held at Copenhagen in March 1995.

14. We invite the developed countries, in the governing bodies of the multilateral financing institutions, to hold negotiations with the developing countries, particularly those in Africa, for the purpose of alleviating or reducing their multilateral debts.

15. We welcome the appeal made by Mr. Zini El-Abidine Ben Ali, President of the Republic of Tunisia and current Chairman of OAU, at the meeting of the seven principal industrialized countries held at Naples, Italy, in July 1994, calling for the elimination or reduction of the debt of African countries.

16. We again state that the question of the external debt remains the most serious obstacle to the efforts we are making to mobilize resources for development, and we urge that a durable and comprehensive solution to the debt question should be found as soon as possible. In this respect, we support the initiative of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries with respect to debt, as it was elaborated at the conference of ministers of non-aligned countries on debt and development, held at Jakarta from 13 to 15 August 1994, and we request that the report and recommendations of that Conference be considered at the current session of the General Assembly.

17. We reiterate our appeal to the United Nations system and the international community to provide effective support to the OAU machinery for conflict prevention, management and resolution.

18. We recommend that the composition of the Security Council should reflect the current realities of international life, including the end of the cold war, the democratization process, which should be extended to the intergovernmental organs, and the increase in the membership of the United Nations. In this respect, at least two permanent seats, with their accompanying prerogatives, should be reserved for Africa. The members of the Security Council could be elected eventually on the basis of equitable geographical representation.

19. The efforts made by the United Nations in conflict prevention and in maintaining or promoting a lasting peace should be in strict compliance with the provisions of the Charter relating to national sovereignty, territorial integrity and non-intervention in the internal affairs of Member States. They should also include the establishment of early warning systems, the dispatch to potential conflict areas of fact-finding or observer missions, and the establishment of observer posts in tension-filled areas, with emphasis on confidence-building measures.

20. The deplorable proliferation of conflicts within and between States which has followed upon the end of the cold war demonstrates that innovative approaches to conflict prevention, management and resolution are required. We stress the multidimensional nature of the conflicts, and we are of the view that the maintenance of peace and security should encompass political, social, economic, humanitarian and other considerations of relevance to development.

21. The proliferation of conflicts and crises throughout the world has strained the capacity of the United Nations to be effective and decisive in carrying out peace-keeping activities in the afflicted countries. We are perturbed by the increasingly marked trend towards selective treatment of crises in different regions of the world and by the reluctance of Member States to act rapidly to meet the requirements of peace-keeping operations. In this context, the United Nations should strengthen its cooperation with the regional organizations, including OAU, in the spirit of Chapter VIII of the Charter, which provides for contributions to regional agencies of technical, logistic and financial assistance.

22. We note with satisfaction that the war in Rwanda, which inflicted unprecedented human suffering and tragedy, has ended. We are also pleased to note that a new government has been installed in Kigali, and we appeal to it to establish a climate that will facilitate the prompt return of the refugees. The efforts made by the Secretary-General to assist Rwanda and the neighbouring States to cope with the delicate situation in the region created by the exodus of population groups are to be commended. The adoption of measures to set up an international tribunal for the prosecution of perpetrators of heinous crimes in Rwanda should be expedited. In so far as the political problem is concerned, we recommend that it should be considered in the spirit of the duly amended Arusha Peace Agreement, under the auspices of OAU.

23. We welcome the satisfactory progress made in preparing for democratic elections in Mozambique, which should finally mark the end of the long conflict in that country.

24. We note with regret that the situation in Somalia is continuing to deteriorate. We therefore urge that the United Nations Operation in Somalia should be maintained until the necessary arrangements are made for the election of a new government in Somalia.

25. We are following with interest the negotiations between the Government of Angola and UNITA which are being held in Zambia, and we invite the two parties to demonstrate flexibility with a view to reaching an amicable agreement as soon as possible.

26. We note with satisfaction that the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya has accepted Security Council resolution 731 (1992), and we appreciate the positive steps which it has taken towards ending the crisis and the confrontation with France, the United Kingdom and the United States of America. We welcome the condemnation by the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya of international terrorism and those who encourage or practise international terrorism. In noting the physical and human suffering which the people of the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya and neighbouring countries continue to endure as a result of the sanctions imposed by Security Council resolutions 748 (1992) and 883 (1993) and the fact that the dispute has not been settled, we appeal to the parties to avoid any escalation of the dispute and to work towards a peaceful solution that will safeguard their interests, in accordance with Chapter VI of the Charter of the United Nations. In this respect, we welcome resolution 5373 adopted by the League of Arab States, which provides a good basis for a just and peaceful settlement of the crisis. We favour the lifting of sanctions while the dialogue continues.

27. We hope that the landmark occasion of the commemoration of its fiftieth anniversary will provide the United Nations with an opportunity to review its achievements and renew its institutions; to undertake its reforms so as to be able to deal with world problems adequately, in this new era of international relations; and to be more receptive to the aspirations of Africa with respect to sustained and lasting economic growth and development.

28. We endorse the joint African position on the reform of the United Nations and related matters, and we decide to request the Secretary-General of the United Nations to issue this declaration as a document of the General Assembly at the forty-ninth session.
